HOMER HENDEE PASSES AWAY AT AGE OF 97

Was Active as Organizer of Libertyville
Fair

LIVED HERE 20 YEARS

Homer Hendee died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Gideon Thayer, on Wednesday afternoon, April 18, at the age of 97 years and 7 months.

Mr. Hendee was born in Hume, Alleghany county, N. Y. in 1825, and in the year 1845 was united in marriage to Cordelia Woodworth. After several years of farming in that state the couple moved to a farm at Fremont, Ill., near what is known as Hendee station on the Soo line, and at that place resided about forty years, moving to Libertyville where they again established a farm. In the year 1899 Mrs. Hendee passed away, and Homer Hendee came to live with his daughter.

To Mr. and Mrs. Hendee were born six children, three of whom have passed away, while the remaining to mourn his loss are Frank Hendee of California and Wilbur Hendee of Waukegan and Mrs. Gideon Thayer.

The funeral services were held at the home here on Saturday morning and interment was at Libertyville beside his wife.

Mr. Hendee was very active in organizing the Libertyville Fair and attended each year with the exception of the past two years, when ill health kept him confined to his home.

FRIGHTENED HORSES RACE THROUGH THE BUSINESS SECTION

Much excitement was caused last Thursday morning when a team of horses belonging to George White ran away on Main street. The team, headed north was hitched to a light wagon carrying milk cans and were traveling at a terrific rate when one of them fell on the pavement just north of the Depot street intersection and cut himself considerably. The driver was unhurt.

WILLIAM FRAZIER PROPERTY BURNS; LOSS ABOUT $7000

On Tuesday evening while William Frazier of Wilmet was making a call at New Munster fire broke out in one of his barns and when he arrived home at 1 a. m. the fire was well under way, burning in two places. The fire spread from one barn to the other and soon burned to the ground. A chicken coop was also consumed in the blaze and about 350 chickens perished. In the barn was stored considerable household goods and a Ford car. The direction of the wind kept the flames from attacking the house. The loss was placed at about $7,000.

WILMOT IS DEFEATED BY BURLINGTON

The Burlington White Sox baseball club journeyed to Wilmet Sunday and defeated the legion team on its own diamond, 5 to 4. This was the first game of the season and the teams played before a crowd of 500 people. The Wilmet batteries, Edgar and Hegeman, worked very well together. Edgar allowed eight hits. Van Wile and Feest as pitchers and Boyle as catcher formed the Burlington battery.

AUCTION SALE

There will be an auction sale on Saturday, April 23 on the John Dalziel farm, located three miles southwest of Wadsworth and four miles northwest of Orono. There will be thirty-two head of livestock placed on sale. The sale will start at 1 o'clock and L. J. Stocum will be in charge of the auctioneering. The stock is the property of Ed Cunningham.

FIRE AT MOONEY FARM DOES SMALL DAMAGE

Sparks from the chimney burned a small hole in the roof of the Mrs. Vida Mooney home shortly before 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon. Neighbors had the blaze well under way before the local firemen arrived.

NABER ASKS ACTION ON UNFINISHED ROAD SOUTH OF ANTIOCH

Barney Naber, at the meeting of the board of supervisors on Monday morning, asked that some action be taken to determine if three-quarters of a mile of road still unfinished between Antioch and Lake Villa is to be completed.

He stated that the contractor, J. Wade, has taken some of his equipment away, giving the indication that the work might be left undone for the present.

The road and bridge committee promised to give the matter their immediate attention.

FOWLER IS ELECTED HEAD OF THE STATE HOLSTEIN ASS'N

Lake County, which has a larger number of pure bred Holstein cows than any other county in the state, was honored Friday at Aurora, being given the highest office in the state association when Frank T. Fowler of Lake Villa was given the unanimous vote for president. Mr. Fowler was taken by surprise completely as he had not supposed that anyone had in mind the conferring upon him of this distinguished honor. Former Governor Frank O. Lowden is president of the national association. Illinois now ranks fourth of the states in the number of pure bred Holsteins.

The Campfire Girls

MARY HERMAN, Editor
MRS. MARY BRIGHT, Guardian

A bakery sale was held Saturday. The proceeds were $25.12. We wish to thank all who helped us, either by buying or donating, as it helped to make it a success.

A meeting was held last Friday after school to decide at what time each girl should be at the bakery sale.

We are planning to take a hike Friday after school if the weather is good.

A council fire is to be held in the near future to take in the new members.

Special Assessment Notice

You are hereby notified, that Special Assessment No. 7, levied for the improvement of Main Street, in the Village of Antioch, Illinois, will be due and payable, as soon as said assessment is approved by the court, which will be in about two weeks, at which time you may call and pay the same at my office at the Brook State Bank.

Doings at the Grade School

MARGARET WAGNER, Editor

Do you know that Antioch has a climate suitable for the growth of cotton? Hazel Norman brought some cotton which was grown at Mr. Will Herman's to show the sixth grade.

Pearl Burnett is moving with her parents into the Webb flat on Main street.

Some of the oral compositions in fifth and sixth grades in Monday's language class were very amusing. Ask Clarence Miller to tell you about his.

The oral compositions in the seventh and eighth grades were, "A Package I Found," "When Mother Calls," "Get Up," "A Joke on Me."

WOMAN'S CLUB DANCE FRIDAY PROBABLY THE LAST IN OPERA HOUSE

Friday night the Women's Club will hold their May Party in the Opera House for what will probably be the last dance to be held in this hall.

The dance is being held for the purpose of raising funds for the library and the Boy Scout movement. The committee in charge of the party, Mrs. Woodhead, Mrs. Vos and Mrs. Mathews, are extending every effort to make this last dance in the Opera House a big success.

The hall is being very prettily and appropriately decorated for the occasion and an old-fashioned May-pole dance will be given, under the direction of Mrs. Lux. The girls who will take part in this feature are: Bertha Verrier, Helen Gray, Irene Kottelhut, Helen Kottelhut, Martha Hillebrand, Georgia Bacon, Marguerite Grice, Ada Chinn, Ardis Grim, Edith Edgar, Hilma Roslag, Gussie Hucker.

PLAN THREE DAY FAIR AT LIBERTYVILLE IF DEBTS CAN BE MET

After a four-hour discussion of every angle of the fair situation Tuesday night at the Farm Bureau in Libertyville, the officers and directors at midnight authorized the following:

If the town of Libertyville will lead off in a substantial way toward paying the debt of some $5,700, the balance can be raised and the fair will go on and be made doubly attractive.

Some of the changes and program suggested are:

Strict economy in every item of expense.

Three days instead of five.

Cut out to a large extent the main reason for the entire debt, i. e. horse racing.

Inaugurate the most unique and inexpensive program of amusements of any fair in the United States, which aside from baseball will include a list of events, which will surely prove the best drawing program ever attempted and besides the cost will be very much less than the out of all proportion horse racing program of years past.

With horse racing curtailed more space will be available for the stock show, which should be the largest ever had.

The entertainment program suggested:

School children athletic contests.

Horse and Pony show.

Polo on horseback.

Dog racing contests.

State or National horse shoe pitching championships.

Archery (bow and arrow) contests.

Fly casting contests.

Dan O'Leary, the 80-year old pedestrian vs. Horse or motor car.

Push Ball on horseback.

Hurdle races, horses and men.

High jumping (horses).

Expert motor car driving contests (men and women).

Children and women riding contests.

Exhibition by sheep herding dog.

Singling society contests.

Stock judging in front of grand stand with announcement by judges why the prizes are awarded.

Every well wisher should send to the secretary, John Wirtz, Area, Ill., any suggestions for a better, more instructive, more attractive fair.

Fluid Milk Market to Be Pushed

"Prepare to market thru fluid channels." That is the message from Fred Blizzard, newly appointed general manager of the Milk Producers' Marketing Company, to the dairymen of the Chicago dairy district. Henceforth then, the policy of the Marketing Company will be to serve the fluid milk dealers and the fluid milk market will be the foundation on which the company will build. According to Mr. Blizzard a strong fluid milk foundation means a permanent and lasting success. Mr. Blizzard reaches this conclusion only after a careful study of the whole milk situation in the Chicago dairy district.

This does not mean that the Marketing Company's plans for the manufacturing and sale of case goods is to be altered—it simply means attention is to be centered on the fluid milk end of the business. The butter pool, the cheese pool and the condensed milk pool all have their rightful place in the cooperative marketing of milk in the Chicago dairy district, but the greatest attention is to be centered upon the fluid milk part of the business for the fluid milk pool is the money pool and the most important right now.

Steps will be taken at once to serve the fluid milk trade of Chicago thru regular established channels. The Milk Producers' Marketing Company does not plan to go into the retail milk business unless they are forced to do so and as long as the buyers of fluid milk in the Chicago dairy district will deal fairly with the Marketing Company there is no reason to believe that their investment in equipment and good will are not secure.

The Chicago dairy district lies in a great Metropolitan milk belt with 2,800,000 consumers to be supplied daily. The demand from these consumers is unlimited and constant. It behooves the Marketing Company to serve this trade in every particular during periods of shortage as well as periods of abundant supply. Even to the point of drawing milk from condensaries if conditions should warrant such action. The fluid milk trade of the Chicago dairy district holds away over the market in Chicago as it does in an Metropolitan district. This, however, is not true of butter, or cheese, or condensed milk which are constantly handicapped by coming up against sectional, national or even international competition. Even cream in the days is sent hundreds of miles in refrigerator cars. But in the case of fluid milk no other dairy district can encroach materially upon its market monopoly.

Fluid milk sales are always certain. They do not require continual expensive sales campaigns and huge appropriations for national advertising as is required to meet the competition of manufactured dairy products. For these reasons then, Mr. Blizzard believes the Marketing Company must first of all cater its greatest attention and effort upon the fluid milk pool in maintaining its consistent forward policy of cooperative marketing. Of course fluid milk that cannot be made up in condensed milk, butter, cheese or powdered milk as is carefully provided for in the Marketing Company's plan—but such marketing must be secondary to the fluid milk pool.

High School News Notes

The American History class are collecting material on the history of Antioch. The pupils started this work last fall but dropped it and are continuing it again. Both the township and village are to be studied. Many people are loaning their abstracts for use. Anyone having any information on this work we would be thankful to have it.

The home economics club is busy preparing for the faculty and board member banquet to be given Tuesday night.

What's the result of joy riding, seniors?

Miss Clevenger's science class has finished the study of "popular science."

The pupils have taken a great interest in it.

The freshman English class is keeping a dairy this week.

High school pupils—Beware "Keep off the grass."

Miss Tiffany spent the week end in Waukegan attending the Lake Shore division of the state teachers' convention.

Miss Brand is having the stage redecorated for the operaetta.

Freshmen seem to be quite poetic lately. Instead of writing themes for English they write poems.

Miss Olson and Miss Clevenger spent Saturday in Chicago.

The seniors have found the new 10-cent books very interesting. They include many of our contemporary European writers.

There is a new volume of "Who's Who" in the library besides several other valuable books.

Tickets for the Garden of the Shah will cost you only 35 and 25 cents if you purchase from members of the chorus. We want to give you more than you paid for. Here's a chance to get a great deal for a little.

The class in art and design is preparing "model rooms" which will display the correct color schemes, furniture placing and drapery that should be used.

George Eck and Ward Abt motored to Chicago Friday afternoon.

Sam Levenson was a Chicago visitor Thursday.

The basketball and football boys were given letters for their work in athletics. The following were the ones to receive them:

George Keulman two, Howard Spafford two, Gordon Ames two, Wesley Wertz two, Lester Nelson two, Albert Tiffany two, Clarence Nador two, Edwin Rontner basketball, Clifford Hook football, Irving Elms football, George Eck football, James Gray football, Dwight Drom football, Chas. Stearns, football, Albert Herman football.

Charles Stearns was elected captain for the 1923 football team.

Albert Tiffany was elected captain for the 1923-24 basketball team.

The boys were asked to give speeches when they received their letters, but we think they had better take up public speaking as they are all rather bashful.

Ada Chinn has returned to school after a long siege of scarlet fever.

The juniors are still shining shoes. The juniors will sell candy at the Woman's Club dance Friday night.

PASS LAW AGAINST SALE OF FIREWORKS

Village Board Makes an Ordinance Assuring
Sane Fourth

VEHICLE TAX TABLED

The Village Board held the last meeting of their elective term on Monday evening and brought to a close the ordinance prohibiting the sale of fireworks in the village. This ordinance has been discussed at various times during the past winter, but nothing definite had been decided until the meeting on Monday evening, when the matter was finally closed.

The ordinance states that no one will be allowed to sell fireworks of any kind within the village limits or within one-half mile radius of the limits, and that all offenders will be prosecuted and fined not less than $5.00 nor more than $20.00.

The proposed vehicle tax which has been discussed at several meetings was not acted upon. The outgoing members thought it best to leave that matter up to the members of the new board.

The new fireworks ordinance is as follows:

An ordinance prohibiting the sale of fireworks, firecrackers, torpedoes, roman candles and sky rockets within the jurisdiction of the village of Antioch, County of Lake and State of Illinois.

Be it ordained by the President and Board of Trustees of the village of Antioch, County of Lake and State of Illinois:

Section 1—No person, firm or corporation shall sell, barter or exchange any fireworks, firecrackers, torpedoes, roman candles, sky rockets or other articles intended for pyrotechnic display within the limits of the village of Antioch, County of Lake and State of Illinois.

Section 2—No person, firm or corporation shall sell, barter or exchange any fireworks, firecrackers, torpedoes, roman candles, sky rockets or other articles intended for pyrotechnic display within one-half mile of the village limits and for the purpose of enforcement of this ordinance jurisdiction of the said village of Antioch shall extend and include all within one-half mile of the corporate limits of the village of Antioch in the State of Illinois.

Section 3—Any person, firm or corporation who shall rent or lease any real estate or improvements thereon for the purpose of sale, barter or exchange of any of the articles or things enumerated in this ordinance or who shall knowingly permit any person, firm or corporation to occupy, use or make use of any real estate or improvements thereon within the limits of the village of Antioch or within one-half mile of the corporate limits in the State of Illinois shall be subject to the fine and imprisonment as is hereinafter provided.

Section 4—Any person, firm or corporation who shall directly or indirectly violate the provisions of this ordinance shall be fined not less than Five Dollars ($5.00) nor more than Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00) for each and every offense and each and every sale, barter or exchange in violation hereof shall constitute a separate and distinct offense and shall be punishable accordingly and on the failure to pay such fine any person so in default may be imprisoned in the Village Jail or Calaboose until such fine and costs have been fully paid or otherwise discharged, according to law. In addition to the penalty as aforesaid the Marshall or other Police Officers of said Village may seize all such articles or things as may be made by such sale, barter or exchange and confiscate the same.

Section 5—All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Section 6—This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication as provided by law.

Passed April 23, 1923.

Approved April 23, 1923.

"The Girl and the Case"

By Randall Parrish

CHAPTER XV

Escape From the Raft.

The raft drifted aimlessly on the waves lapping its sides, and tossing it about as though in wanton play. The girl lay quiet, her face upturned, unconscious now of her dread surroundings; and the man swayed above her, his head bent upon his breast, both sleeping the sleep of sheer exhaustion. It was the startled cry of Natalie that roused West, and brought his drooping head upright. She was sitting up and pointing excitedly behind him. "Oh, see there! Look where I point—Isn't that land?"

The raft rocked as he swung his body hastily about, and gazed intently in the direction indicated. He rubbed his eyes, scarcely able to credit his sight, half believing it a mirage. Yet the view remained unchanged; it was land, a bit of the west shore, a short promontory running out into the lake toward which the raft, impelled by some hidden current, was steadily drifting. His arm clasped the girl in sudden ecstasy.

"Yes, it's land, thank God!" he exclaimed thoughtfully. "We are floating ashore, Natalie—saved in spite of ourselves. Why, we could not have been so far out in the lake, after all. I ought to have thought of that before; those villains would never have deserted the yacht in mid-lake, and taken to the boat. They must have known they could make shore easily."

"You don't suppose they landed here, do you?"

"Not very likely; even if they did they are not here now. Not one of them has a thought but that we went down in the Seafoam. Now they'll pull off their graft, and pull it quick. They are not loitering around here, Natalie, waiting for ghosts to appear; they are back in town hours ago."

"But what can we do?"

"Get ashore first, of course, and discover the quickest way to return to the city. I figure we have a big advantage. We know their real game now, and they are so sure we are both dead, they'll operate in the open—walk right into a trap. By this time McAdams must have discovered some clue as to the whereabouts of Hobart. With him under arrest, and our story told, some of these fellows will confess, and it will all be over with."

"It is twilight already—the sun has gone down behind the bluff, but it will require an hour yet for this raft to drift into shallow water. You swim, you told me."

"Yes, very well indeed."

"Shall we risk it then together? It is not far to the end of the point you—"

She looked where he pointed and smiled, glancing back into his questioning eyes.

"Why, that involves no danger at all. I will do anything to get off this raft. The two slipped silently over the edge of the dipping raft, and struck out for the nearest point of land. The distance was greater than it had seemed, while the twilight deceiving their eyes, while their clothing had a tendency to retard progress. Weakened by lack of food, and buffeted by cross currents, both were decidedly exhausted by the time their lowering feet finally touched bottom.

"Oh," Natalie exclaimed breathlessly, "That was glorious, but I hardly

"That Was Glorious."

had enough strength left to make it. Why, it is almost dark already. I can't see the old raft at all. I—I wish

It would come ashore; it gave you to me, Matt."

"And you are not sorry, even now, safe here on shore?"

"Sorry! Why I am the happiest girl in all the world this minute. I am here with you, and you love me—what more can I ask? Is that silly, dear?"

He laughed, and kissed her, neither giving a thought to their dripping garments, or a regret for the hardships they had passed through.

"Yes, I love you, Natalie, dear," he answered. "So it is not silly at all. But we must seek shelter and food. Are you strong enough now to climb the bluff?"

She nodded her readiness to try, too happy for words, and hand in hand they toiled their way upward through the gloom.

CHAPTER XVI

The House in the Bluffs.

The cleft in the bluff was both narrow and steep, but it gave them passage. At the upper end Natalie's reserve strength suddenly deserted her, and she sank down on the grass, laboring for breath, feeling unable to advance a step farther. The days and nights of excitement, coupled with lack of food and sleep, had left her physically weakened; now suddenly, even her will and courage both gave way.

"No, it is nothing," she explained in a whisper. "I am just completely tired out, I guess. You go on, Matt, and find some place of shelter. I'll just sit where I am now until you come back—only—only don't go very far away."

She held out her hand, and endeavored to smile.

"Desert me! Of course you are not, dear. I am bidding you go. I shall not mind being left here alone. I am so tired."

West felt the importance of gaining a view inland before the closing down of night obscured everything, and therefore reluctantly left her alone there while he made his way to the top of the ridge. It was a wild, broken country revealed to his gaze, a land of ridges and ravines, rugged and picturesque, but exhibiting no evidence of roads, or inhabitants. Then his eyes caught a thin spiral of smoke rising from out a narrow valley almost directly beneath where he stood, the depths of which were totally concealed from sight. As he stared at this, uncertain of its reality, a single spark of light winked out at him through the darkness. There was certainly a habitation of some kind hidden away down there. If he could only leave Natalie there in safe hands, in the security of a home, however humble, food would give him strength to push on alone. West turned and hastened back through the woods, clambering down the slope of the ridge in darkness to the spot where he had left the girl. For the moment he could not distinguish her presence in the gloom, and, fearing he might have gone astray, called her name aloud.

"Yes," she answered. "I am here; to your right. I am standing up. Have you discovered anything?"

"There is a house of some kind over yonder in a hollow just beyond the ridge. We will have to stumble along through the dark. Do you think you can make it?"

"Of course, I can," and she placed her hand confidently in his. "I am all right now; really I am; I guess all I needed was to get my breath."

He grasped her arm, helping her to clamber up the steep bank, suddenly becoming aware that the sleeve felt dry.

"Why, Natalie, your clothes seem to have all dried off already; mine are soaked through," he exclaimed in surprise.

She laughed, a faint tinge of mockery in the sound.

"No mystery whatever. This light stuff dries quickly, exposed to the air. Did you think you had hold of the wrong girl?"

"The tone of her voice stung slightly, causing him to make a sober answer. "That would, of course, be improbable, but I have been so completely deceived, even by daylight, that I dare not affirm that it would prove impossible. Your counterfeit is certainly a wizard."

"She must be. But as she is miles away from here, you might let the suspicion rest. Is this where we go down?"

She led the way, the action awakening no question in his mind. If he thought of all about her thus assuming the initiative, the suspicion was dismissed with the idea that probably her eyes were more keen to discover the best path. In this she was certainly successful, and he contented himself by following her closely, but vaguely he felt that in some almost imperceptible manner she had changed her mood. He could not base his yet he felt the difference—this was too irritable; too sharp of speech. But then, no doubt, she was tired, worn out, her nerves broken. So he drove to her arm, and vaguely wondering how she was able to trace the path so easily. By this time even West could recognize that they were proceeding along a well-used path, and he was not surprised when she announced the presence of the house before them, pointing out the dim shadow through the gloom.

"You Are Not Miss Coolidge."

"That is no hut," he exclaimed in surprise. "It looks more like a man's abode."

"And why not?" he pleasantly enough. "I have always heard these bluffs were filled with summer homes. Unfortunately this one appears to be deserted."

"But there must be some one about here," West insisted. "For this was the house I saw from the ridge, and there was a light burning then in one of the windows, and there was a wisp of smoke rising from a chimney."

She stepped boldly forward, and placed her hand on the knob of the door.

"Why," she whispered, excitedly. "It is unlocked; see, I can open it. Perhaps something is wrong here. What shall we do?"

"Knock first; then if there is no response, we can feel our way about inside. My hunches are all wet."

"She rapped sharply on the wood; waited for some reply, and then called out. Not a word reached them from within. West, his teeth clenched, stepped in through the open door, determined to learn the secret of that mysterious interior. With hands outstretched he felt his way forward, by sense of touch alone assuring himself that he traversed a hall, carpeted, his extended arms barely reaching from wall to wall. He encountered no furniture, and must have advanced some two yards, before his groping disclosed the presence of a closed door on the left. He had located the knob, when the outer door suddenly closed, as though blown shut by a draught of wind, and, at the same instant, his eyes were blinded by a dazzling outburst of light.

This came with such startling, unexpected brilliancy that West staggered back as though struck. For the instant he was positively blind; then he dimly perceived a man standing before him—a man who, little by little, became more clearly defined, recognizable, suddenly exhibiting the features of Jim Hobart, satanically grinning into his face.

"You are evidently a cat of nine lives, West," he said seeringly. "But this ought to be the last of them."

For a moment West lost all control over himself. He was too completely dazzled for either words or action; could only stare into that mocking countenance confronting him, endeavoring to sense who had really occurred. He was undoubtedly trapped again, but how had the trick been accomplished? What dastardly freak of luck had thus thrown him once more into the merciless hands of this ruffian? He even ventured to turn his head, and glance at the girl. She stood leaning back against the closed door as though on guard; her uncovered hair ruffled, a scornful, defiant look in her eyes, the smile on her lips revealing the gleam of white teeth. In spite of a wonderful resemblance, a mysterious counterfeiter in both features and expression, West knew now this was not Natalie Coolidge. He had permitted himself to be tricked again by the jade; the snarl of the wound angered him beyond control.

"You are not Miss Coolidge," he insisted hotly. "Then who are you?"

She laughed, evidently enjoying the scene.

"Oh, so even Captain West has at last penetrated the disguise. No, I am not the lady you mention, if you must know."

"Then who are you?"

She glanced toward Hobart, as though questioning, and the man answered the look grimly:

"Tall him if you want to, Del," he said, with an oath. "I will never do the guy any good. I've played his last hand in this game—he'll never get away from me again. Kill it out."

"All right," with a mocking curtesy. "I've got an idea I'd like to tell him; it is too good a joke to keep, and this fellow has certainly been an easy mark. Lord, but I could have had you making love to me, if I'd only have said the word—out there on the hills in the dark, hey! You sure are plumb nutty after this Natalie Coolidge. That's the straight goods, isn't it, Mister Captain West?"

"I care very much for Miss Coolidge, if that is what you mean."

"Sure you do; and you've put up a game fight for her too, my boy. I'd like it in you if I wasn't on the other side. But you see we can't be easy on you just because of that. Sentiment and romance is one thing, while business is another. You and I don't belong in the same world—see? You can't rightly blame me because I was born different, can you?"

"Perhaps not; what would you make me believe?"

"I thought I'd put it that way so you'd understand, that's all. There's a difference in people, ain't there? I'm just as good looking as this Natalie Coolidge, ain't I? Sure I am; you can't even tell us apart when we are dressed up alike. I could come in here, and have you make love to me inside of twenty minutes. But we ain't a bit alike, for all that. She's a lady, and I'm a crook—that's the difference. She's been brought up with all the money she wants, while I've had to hustle for every penny since I was a kid. I was brought up a thief, and I don't know anything else. I never did care much, but in this Coolidge matter, I've got just as much right to all that kink as she has—so naturally I'm going after it."

"As much right, you say? Why, who are you?"

She stood up straight, and looked at him, her eyes burning.

"Me!" scornfully, "why I am Della Hobart—Diamond Del, they call me."

"Yes, but that is not what you mean; that gives you no such right as you claim. You are Hobart's daughter, then?"

"I didn't say so, Mister Captain West. I told you my moniker, that's all. Jim here brought me up, but he ain't no father to me, and his wife ain't my mother. It took me a while to find that out, but I got the thing straight at last. I saw them just what those two were doing at; first I didn't take no particular interest in the scheme; then I got to thinking and finally I hated that soft, downy thing; and—well, she'd robbed me, and I had a right to my share even if I had to steal it."

"What soft, downy thing?"

"Natalie Coolidge! Bah, I went out to see her once. Jim took me and we hid in the garden; and when I came back I was raving mad. Lord, why should that little idiot have everything while half the time I was hungry?"

"You mean you envied her?"

"Envied, h—! Didn't I have a right? Wasn't she my twin sister? Didn't she have it all, and I nothing?"

He gasped for breath at this sudden revelation. Then he laughed, convinced it could not be possible.

"Who told you that?"

"Why, don't you believe it? Has she never said a word about it to you?"

"Certainly not. I am sure she possesses no knowledge of ever having had a sister. Moreover, I do not believe it is true. If you had proof of such relationship, why didn't you go to her, and openly claim your share?"

"Go to her! me? Do you hear that, Jim? Isn't he the cute little fox? Why, of course, she knew it; there was nothing doing on the divide. It's all straight enough, only we couldn't prove it by law; anyhow that is what they told me—so we got at it from another direction."

She seemed so convinced, so earnest in her statement that, West in perplexity turned to glance at Hobart.

"Do you make this claim also?" he asked.

"What claim?"

"That this girl is a twin sister to Natalie Coolidge? Why, it is preposterous."

"Is it? D—! If I think so. Now look here, West; I don't know just what the Coolidge girl has been told; maybe she never even heard she had a twin sister. If they ever told her that she had, then they must have told her also that the sister died in infancy. Anyhow, that's how it stands on the records. There were just two people who knew different—do you get me? One of them is dead, but one of them is still alive."

"Which one is dead?"

Methodist Episcopal Church News

The coming Sunday morning the theme of the public service will be, "The Race Problem in America." A perilous thing in the present is the race antagonism which is always so high in large numbers of cities and towns that there is danger of a race riot any day with the shedding of blood, like several race wars that have already taken place. Many close observers in every town where there is a colored population are in constant fear of bloodshed. It is so in a number of parts of Chicago, and it is so in Evanston. It is believed that frank discussion of the problem will help to solve it. Come Sunday morning at 10:45 and let us study it together.

Last Sunday morning's subject was "Wayside Hearers." The main line of thought was: Jesus taught in the parable of the sower that, just as the soil of the public road is the most worthless and hopeless of all soils, so the most worthless and hopeless of human heart soils is the human heart which is permitted to be the public highway for everything to tramp through. Never has there been a time when the world was so full of things that attract the eye, the ear, the pride, the ambition, the desire for pleasure, excitement—everything. This line of thinking, that sort of feeling, this reading, that entertainment, this pleasure and that interesting detail—all come trooping and tramping through our thinking and tramp the good soil of our mind and hearts to a public road, where the good seed of reality, soul-life, goodness, usefulness can not take root. We become wayside sell by permitting our minds and hearts to be the tramping ground of everything in general, instead of fencing off our minds and hearts and keeping the soil good and fit for the production of those high thoughts, holy purposes and sweet and good emotions that alone can make life worth living.

The remedy is to set ourselves to shut out the things that get us nowhere and give our time and energy to thinking on the things which will get us somewhere. In proportion as we think on the things that are worthless, we become worthless.

WILLING

The bargaining for the cow had been going on leisurely for an hour. Finally the prospective purchaser came faintly to the point.

"How much milk does she give?" he asked.

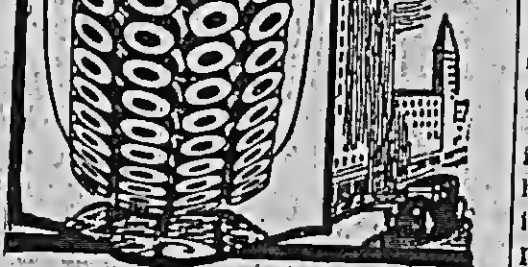

"I don't rightly know," answered the farmer who owned her. "But she's a durn good-natured critter, an' she'll give all she can."

THE MAIN PART

"Are you sure you have shown me all the principal parts of this car?" asked the fair prospective purchaser.

"Yes, madam; all the main ones," replied the dealer.

"Well, then, where is the depreciation?" Tom told me that was one of the biggest things about a car."

St. Ignatius' Church News

Bishop Anderson's visit to St. Ignatius' church, Antioch, is an event that will not be forgotten soon. The Bishop came on Wednesday evening, and during the evening service the sacramental rite of confirmation was administered to seven persons, and the Bishop preached. Not only did the singing go well, but the sermon was perhaps the finest ever preached in St. Ignatius' church. The Bishop complemented the people on the heartiness of the service and the good spirit manifested at that time. The church was crowded to the very limit and there was no room left. After the service a meeting of the Finance committee and members of the Ladies Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Chase Webb. The next morning at 7:30 the Bishop celebrated the holy eucharist, and the members of the Confirmation class made their first communion, besides many others. The service was very impressive, and the Bishop wore the white silk eucharistic vestments belonging to the Parish. All went away with a feeling of spiritual satisfaction and exultation.

The services last Sunday were as usual, and will be as usual next Sunday. Church School at 9:45, and Morning Prayer and address at 11:00. Morning Prayer is now being conducted according to the latest revision of the Prayer Book. The Shorter Absolution is used, the Benedictus Es Domino instead of the Te Deum, and many slight alterations in the prayers. New prayers for special purposes have been added and there is more elasticity than before.

"O send out thy light and thy truth that they may lead me and bring me unto thy holy hill and to thy dwelling." Psalm 43:3.

E. R. COGSWELL HEADS SUBURBAN DIVISION OF BELL PHONE CO.

Mr. E. R. Cogswell, formerly of Springfield, has been appointed division commercial superintendent of the suburban division of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, comprising the exchanges in Cook county, Illinois, outside the city of Chicago, McHenry, Lake, Kane, DuPage, Kendall, Grundy and Will counties, Illinois, and Lake county, Indiana, to succeed Mr. O. J. Holbrook, who, for more than twenty-eight years, has been superintendent in this division.

On his return from California, Mr. Holbrook will be assigned special duties on the staff of the vice-president and general manager.

Mr. E. R. Cogswell is a practical telephone man, having spent his life in the business. Starting out in 1905 with the Central Union Telephone Company as a troubleman, he showed remarkable ability and rose rapidly through all branches of the industry to the position of chief inspector. He was appointed district commercial manager at Springfield in 1911, holding this position until his recent appointment as superintendent.

ANOTHER ARMY CONTRACTOR
There are two things better than working for yourself. Dodging work altogether, and having somebody else do it for you.

The advance of a division under fire in the non-too-late war had been halted and orders were given to dig in. Earth began to fly except at one point where, behind a natural mound, the top of a doughboy's head was to be seen, while cigarette smoke curled lazily upward.

"Dig in! Dig in!" yelled a Lieutenant on a tour of inspection.

"Hush," replied the soldier reproachfully. "Don't disturb my contractor."

Peering over the edge of the mound, the Lieutenant saw a German soldier digging away as if his life depended on it—which it did—only a few inches from the end of the doughboy's rifle.

SLANDERED

"What's the matter, Ananias, you look downhearted."

"Matter 'nough, boss. Ah reckon Ah done los' my reputation as a liar."

"Why, how's that?"

"Well, when Ah come back 'r'm the war, Ah tol' mah girl Ah was at do front an' had coolies an' everything. Now sho tell me dat Munchausen Jones done relate to her dat he was at do front, too. Ho say dat all de coolies was natives of Bordeaux, an' do reason dey shunned him an' stayed by me was dat dey knew Ah would sholy finish dem quick transportation back home."

GONE HIS LIMIT

"Prisoner have you anything to offer in your own behalf?"

"No, you Honor. I've turned every cent I own over to my lawyer and a couple of the juryman."

POULTRY

CHICKEN LICE WORRY FOWLS

Application of Blue Ointment is Effective—Sodium Fluoride Also Works Well.

A study of the life of chicken lice shows that there are a dozen different kinds infesting the same bird. Most of them, however, frequent the rear part of the body at least once in every twenty-four hours where they obtain the necessary moisture for their life and growth. This moisture is obtained from around the vent. This habit of lice would answer one method of treatment, the use of blue ointment.

Blue ointment applied around the vent and under the wing of each fowl affected seems to get rid of the lice in a very short time. A piece the size of a good sized pea is plenty for one bird. If the blue ointment is thick and heavy it should be melted so that it can be applied in a very thin layer. It is well to make a second application two weeks after the first, especially if the birds are badly affected.

We find that about two applications a year seem to be sufficient to control the lice.

Any of the advertised lice powders and many of the home-made powders seem to work very well for a short time. Their results, however, are only temporary, thus involving considerable labor in holding down this trouble. Good dust willow handy in the poultry house, also adds considerably to controlling this pest.

Sodium fluoride can also be used to control lice. This is a common preparation which can be obtained at any drug store. It is applied by what is known as the pinch method. A pinch should be worked into the flesh of the tail, a pinch under each wing, a pinch on the back, and a pinch worked into the neck feathers. This treatment seems to work very well. By Harry Emberton, Professor of Poultry Husbandry, Oklahoma A. and M. College.

FATAL DISEASE OF TURKEYS

First Symptom of Blackhead is Slowness of Movement—Poults Need Clean Quarters.

The first symptom of that fatal disease of turkeys, blackhead, is slowness of movement. A poult coming down with this disease will show no symptoms in the early stages, but he will come trailing in after the rest of the poults have come in to roost; at first just a few feet behind, gradually getting farther and farther in the rear of the homecoming poults, until finally the evening comes when he stops by the wayside.

When the first legging is seen, shut the poult up, give him only sour milk to eat, and give a dose of epsom salts. He can have all the chopped nettles, dandelions or onions he will eat, but that's all. The droppings of affected poults should be buried. Poults will not thrive if fed where there is the filth of other poultry. Keep them clean—that is, free from lice and mites; feed them clean food on a clean floor; or trough, and give them drinking water that has not been fouled.

POULTRY NOTES

The hen that lays 150 eggs a year is doing very good work.

Winter eggs should be the constant object of poultry flock owners.

It is not so much what is fed as how it is given that brings results.

Frozen combs are a good sign of poor ventilation in the henhouse. It's not so much the cold as the humidity.

Chickens that are sick or anemic and doing poorly should be killed out at all times. The spindle-legged, long-headed, shallow-bodied pullets should be eliminated as soon as discovered.

Use one male bird to every ten or fifteen hens of the heavier breeds, and one to every fifteen or twenty Leghorn hens to give good fertility.

Wyandottes have a standard weight of 8½ pounds for cocks; 6½ pounds for hens; 7½ pounds for cockerels, and 6½ pounds for the pullets.

Geese generally mate in pairs, but occasionally where you have two or three geanders you can work in an extra goose and find that the eggs will be fertile; otherwise not.

Trevor School Notes

(Too late for last week)

We are glad to say our eighth grade pupil, Fred Forester, passed his final examination for a diploma.

All seventh graders wrote on geography March 13. The four who received passing grades were: Pauline Schaffer, 85, Gertrude and Marion Mathews, 82, Chester Runyard, 80. They will not have to write on geography next year.

The pupils who have a clear spelling record for the week are: Chris Schaffer, Myrtle Mickle, Dorothy Hahn, Charles Polze, August Kaitenberger and Pauline Schaffer.

The pupils who have a perfect attendance record for the week are: Percy and Albert Mizzen, Chris and Pauline Schaffer, Gertrude and Marion Mathews, Nina and Clarence Miller, Adeline and Carl Ostling, Dorothy Hahn and Fred Forester.

We were pleased to have Pauline Copper enter school April 16.

Our fourth-grade champions in spelling are: Iva Marks, Mae Polze, Mildred Hahn.

Russel Lennan was absent from school all week on account of illness. The fourth grade has finished their season booklet.

Little Dolly van De Velden visited school Thursday and Friday. Nina Marks also visited us on Friday.

The sewing girls have taken a sudden interest in their sewing. We wonder why?

The manual training boys studied the making of glue, how it is manufactured, how used and applied. They are also completing their bird houses. The pupils that have attended The pupils that have not failed in spelling are: Allen Copper, Clarence Melior, Pauline and Chris Schaffer, and Myrtle Mickle. The sewing girls are very busy.

DIVERSION

Two youths, cruising about for work, had finally acquired jobs giving wheel-chair exercise to the inmates of an old men's home. One morning one of them got the first customer of the day and started propelling him up the main street of the village. He was inexperienced, and his ancient charge gained several years in age as he barely escaped being shoved into the creek and then pushed under the wheels of a trolley car. At the top of a steep hill, his attendant paused.

"W-w-what are we waiting for?" gasped the chair's occupant.

"S'all right, old top," answered the other. "I'm waitin' for my buddy with another old gent. We're gonna have a race down the hill."

NOT SUCH A WORSE IDEA

"Buck up, old boy," said the sporty chap. "We'll go down to the skating rink, get a pair of skates and forget our troubles."

"Good scheme!" explained his love-sick friend. "Last time I was down there I was unconscious for two hours."

THE TRAMP

Once on an August night,
A downcast tramp,
Strayed by a church,
From within came sweet sounds;
Beautiful voices singing hymns,
And a great pipe organ
Near burst his throat,
For want of expression.
The tramp, tired, stopped
And lent a glad ear to the music.
His soul was moved
By the mellow strains,
And tears welled up
In his faded, faded, eyes,
As he thought of
What he might have been.
He looked back over
His nomadic life, his errantry,
The home he left, his mother,
Did the Divine One
Remember his existence?
Then the tired tramp
Ventured to enter the church.
He removed his hat
And sat down in a rear pew.
That he might drink in the music,
That he might purge his soul,
And as he sat listening
His mind went out
From his tired body.
He was dreaming things
As pretty as the organ music.
Suddenly, violent hands
Aroused him and collared him.
A police officer was called,
And the tramp was given
To the constable's custody.
"Trespassing and housebreaking,"
Was the magistrate's charge,
Followed by a fortnight in gaol.

The tramp is still wandering.
He holds churches
In the same fear and awe
As he does a surly sheep-dog.
He is still wandering.
The choir still practices,
On August nights.

The Storm

The clouds came up,
The sun went out
The air was still.
All calm about.

The rain came swiftly
The lightning did flash
The thunder all around
Gave an awful crash.

The chickens and cows
All round the farm,
Went to the shelter of
The old red barn.

The rain came down
For an hour or more
The thunder crashed
I locked the door.

The wind did blow
The trees did sway,
And the waves did roll
Across the bay.

They tossed the boats
Up and down
And back and forth
And all around.

The rain did stop
And I went out
To see what damage
It did about.

And after a while
The sun came out
And I went fishing
To get some trout.

—George Eck.

JUST AN ACCIDENT

John Helforwork, Happy Hawkins' hired man, was being examined preparatory to taking out an insurance policy.

"Ever had any accidents?" asked the doctor.

"None."

"Never had an accident in your life?"

"None, except maybe last spring when Happy's hull throw me over the corn crib."

"Don't you call that an accident?"

"Gosh, no! He did it on purpose."

PROCEEDINGS OF WORLD DAIRY CONGRESS WILL BE PRINTED

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has delegated to Assistant Secretary Pugsley the administration of the special fund of $30,000 provided for in the last agricultural appropriation act "for the interpretation, translation, and transcription of discussions and the printing, binding and distribution of the proceedings of the World's Dairy Congress." The act was approved February 26.

The World's Dairy Congress will open at Washington, D. C., and devote two days, October 2 and 3, to the formalities ordinarily connected with the gathering of an international assemblage at the Capital and to the discussion of the broader aspects of dairying—scientific, commercial and humanitarian. On October 4 the delegates will hold sessions at Philadelphia, Pa., where the National Dairy Council will give a demonstration of its activities in promoting national health by educating the public as to the food value of milk and milk products. On October 5 the delegates will reach Syracuse, N. Y., where they will continue to meet mornings until October 10. Afternoons the National Dairy Exposition will open its displays. Evenings will be left free for group and association meetings. On the evening of October 10 the Congress will hold an international banquet, which will probably be the largest gathering of dairy scientists and dairy leaders ever assembled. It is hoped that the appropriation will be sufficient to print the discussions which take place at the entire nine days' sessions.

Secretary Wallace is honorary president of the World's Dairy Congress Association, which was formed by the 23 national associations of the United States dairy industry to conduct the meeting, and L. A. Rogers, director of the research laboratories of the Dairy Division, Bureau of Animal Industry, is chairman of the congress program committee. Assistant Secretary Pugsley has called a conference of representatives of the World's Dairy Congress Association and of the Department of Agriculture to determine what use to make of the appropriation. The papers to be published will be from the pens of some of the best known American and foreign research workers and leaders of thought in the dairy industry of the world.

SUBSTITUTE DESIRED

Edgar, the eight-year-old son of the house, was as lacking in sentimentality as the average small boy and was particularly annoyed by the caresses which his feminine relatives insisted on thrusting at him. One night he was sent to bed shortly after the arrival on a call of a distant connection who, as he was starting to mount the stairs, called:

"Won't you give Cousin Mattie a kiss, dear."

Thoroughly sickened with the whole sex, Edgar returned appealingly to his father and said:

"Dad, for Heaven's sake kiss this woman, will you?"

A REGULAR RECIPE

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested that the Board of Local Improvements of the Village of Antioch in the County of Lake and State of Illinois, having let the contract for the improvement of Main street (Fox River road), in the said village of Antioch, consisting of grading, under drain and storm water drainage system, including catch basins, inlet basins, culverts, removal of and replacing sidewalks, reinforced concrete cement pavement and extension on either side of vitrified orlek pavement, all with curb in, over, along, under and upon said Main street, from the corporate limits on the south to the corporate limits on the north, and the same having been completed and accepted by said board on the 18th day of April, 1923, and said board of local improvements having filed in the County Court of Lake County, Illinois, on the 21st day of April, A. D., 1923, a certificate showing that said improvement conforms substantially to the requirements of the original ordinance for the construction of the same, the costs thereof and the amount estimated by said Board to be required to pay the accrued interest on bonds or vouchers issued to anticipate collections of the assessment for said improvement, a hearing will be had on said certificate as to the truth of the facts stated therein in the court house in the city of Waukegan on the 12th day of May, A. D., 1923, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day or as soon thereafter as the business of the court will permit. All persons desiring may file objections in said court before said day and may appear on the hearing and make their defense.

Dated at Antioch, Illinois, this 23rd day of April, A. D., 1923.

"The Third Alarm."

THEY CHEERED; THEY ROARED; THEY SHOUTED

One thousand of the greatest fire chiefs in the world, assembled in convention at San Francisco, saw many of the scenes of "The Third Alarm" before the production was completed. They rose in their seats—1000 strong—and let go a terrific outburst of acclamation—a demonstration of fervent approval that came in one mighty volume straight from their souls! These hardened men from all parts of the nation sat in cold judgment of "The Third Alarm" for they wanted to be shown!

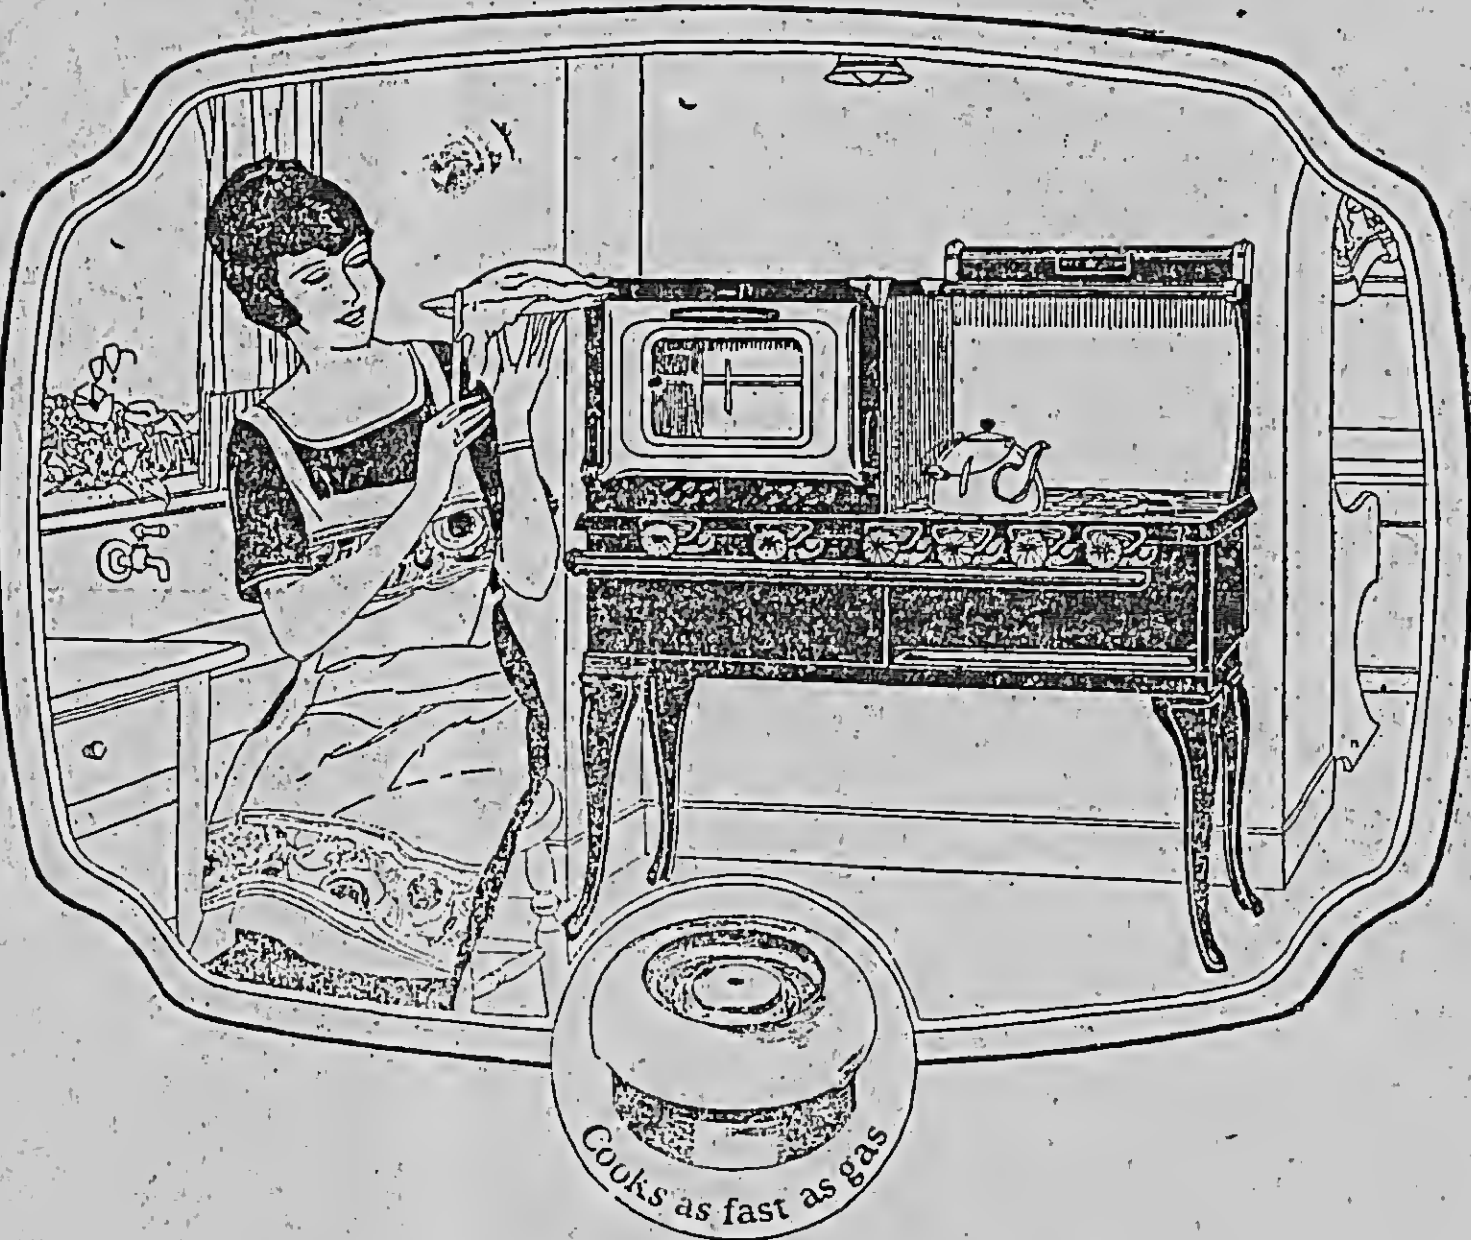

They had seen staggering thrills in real life—they had lived through heart-breaking situations, without number—But here they sat in a darkened room—silent—critical—cold—while "The Third Alarm" swept across the screen like a thundering avalanche. And what was the verdict? They roared their approval and declared that "The Third Alarm" was the greatest motion picture they had ever seen! Great not only because it was a flawless exposition of the romance and drama in a fireman's life, but great, too, because of its stupendous action—and its brilliant and inspiring treatment by one of the greatest of present day directors—Mr. Emory Johnson. And they urged that it be shown by every showman in America—not only as a tribute to the bravery of firemen everywhere, but as a mighty and beautiful tribute to love and faith and human kindness, of which there is all too little in the world today!

Pure Breds Increase in Kansas

Although 396 pure-bred sires and 275 pure-bred females were secured by farmers in Kansas through the efforts of county agents, according to the annual report to the United States department of agriculture of the county agent leader of the state of Kansas, covering the year 1921. Two hundred and seventy-five scrubs were replaced by pure breds, 152 pure-bred berds were started, and 1,117 animals were sold at 23 association sales held by the 21 live-stock improvement associations formed to support the better-sires campaign. A total of 250 meetings were held in the 13 counties, which were active in the work, with an attendance of 4,995 farmers.

OIL STOVE

Women who have thought that oil stoves and oil stove cooking are all alike will have the surprise of their lives during Demonstration Week. We will prove to them that the Red Star Oil Stove and its patented burner have brought a wonderful improvement.

Are you entirely satisfied with your cooking?

The Red Star is an oil stove. But a single glance at the patented Red Star Burner tells you the vast difference.

THERE ARE NO WICKS.

This modern type of burner produces two rings of clean, hot, fast, gas fire. You cook over fast gas heat and bake in a hot gas oven. You have the comfort, convenience, ease and speed of a gas range. And you get the same wonderful cooking and baking results, with one-quarter less fuel.

Watch for announcement of Demonstration Week. Do not fail to visit the demonstration and see your favorite recipes prepared in this remarkable stove.

William Morley Writes on "Radio of Tomorrow"

In the spring of 1922 an oratorical contest was open to the 10,000 soldiers at Schofield barracks, Hawaiian Territory. Any soldier could enter and choose his subject. Out of the large entry at the first trial, eleven were chosen. Another trial and the best three were selected and from these the best one.

On June 30, 1922, the gold medal was awarded to Private William L. Morley, from Antioch, Ill. Following is the speech:

Tomorrow in Radio

Right now America is radio wild. Over a hundred newspapers have established special radio sections. A score of radio magazines are on the stands, and more are appearing. Cartoonists have been bitten hard by the radio bug, and even the most conservative newspapers are devoting page after page to it.

The first months of 1922 found the American people in a peculiar mental state. They were verging on monotony. The war was over; prohibition had lost its punch; jazz was pallid, and the movies were on probation. We were mentally marking time—ripe for a new hobby.

Just at the psychological moment came wave length 360. Out with the old—on with the new, the country was radioized.

A wonderful, fascinating, thrilling chase radio has been leading us, but now it is time to stop and take a breath. Let us look about and see where we are running and what we are likely to encounter. Cleaning some of the dust out of our eyes won't take the thrill out of our new hobby, and it might save us a lot of trouble.

Radio is no flash in the pan—no idle plaything. Everyone realizes that. It is wonderful but it is practical. It is thrilling but it is hard-pan science. Its possibilities numb our imaginations. It exceeds our wildest dreams of ten years ago.

It has shown us such wonders in the last ten months that we are inclined to believe it capable of almost anything. We are rabid radio fans now, and willing to back our marvel against all comers.

Naturally we were sore. Why not? Has not the impossible been accomplished before our very eyes? And if we have gone so far in so short a time, why can we not go infinitely further in a longer time?

But it has not been a short time. At least it cannot be measured by months. Radio has been under experiment for years. It was developed and extended in the great war and perfected during the peace that followed. So it was given to us full passport, equipped for modern competition. It did not come to us as a new discovery, a new invention or an experiment. It had already won its spurs in practical service.

To us, however, it is a novelty. A wonderful gift of science, but nevertheless a sort of plaything. We may as well admit this.

Fortunately the future of radio does not depend upon its power to amuse and entertain us. It plays that part now merely that we may become acquainted with it, become dependent upon it.

Just what does business and science intend to do with the wireless telephone? Do they intend to use it to supplant the telephone of today? No.

Not any more than they intend to supplant the automobile with the airplane. The wireless telephone will be used to supplement the telephone. To do things that the telephone cannot do.

Already radio is giving us valuable service that the telephone could never do. Broadcasting by telephone is impractical—impossible. By radio it is both simple and effective.

It is impossible to hold wired communication with moving objects, with ships at sea, or with airplanes. In the past we could not travel without getting out of touch with business, even in the ultra-modern trains that provided telegraph and telephone connections at every stop.

Today trains carry radio receiving sets with which the business man can keep in constant contact with his business. Tomorrow radio will be common equipment on all first-class trains.

The individual or pocket receiving set is being rapidly perfected. Its receiving radius is at present limited, but it will be extended to a thousand miles within a year.

There is hardly a business organization that does not almost daily have reasons to get in touch with some of their traveling representatives—and to do so in a hurry. Yet the home office is helpless, until the man communicates with it direct. Often it is too late when he returns to his hotel at night. There is but one solution to this problem. The use of individual wireless receiving set. With them the salesman can be reached at any time, irrespective of where he may be.

It is planned that every town and city shall have a transmitting station, exactly as they have telegraph offices today. When any one receives a call on his small receiving set he will merely have to go to the nearest transmitting station and be connected with the party calling him.

Here is the great question of radio industry. Will it be possible to develop transmitting sets that can be carried by the individual? Radio experts say yes. That is, they believe that small sending sets, of limited range, yet strong enough to send to the nearest transmitting station for relay, will be perfected in the next year.

Whether the final development, the dream and goal of the radio industry will ever be reached is at present problematical. That dream is simply this. That a type of multiple transmitting be developed, that will permit messages, thrown by the individual set, to be caught up by the central transmitting station, multiplied in power a thousand-fold and fanned forth, to travel around the world if necessary. And the dream is that this shall be done automatically. This does not mean relayed, but simply increased in power, so that the original message will be sent from the powerful transmitting station simultaneously with the broadcasting of the message from the individual set. When this stage has been attained, radio will know no limitations.

Schofield Barracks, T. H. WILLIAM L. MORLEY, June 30, 1922.

ILLINOIS CO-OPERATIVE SELLS BUTTER IN CUBA

Discontent with the low prices received for milk by the farmers of Stephenson county, Ill., resulted in the organization in September, 1921, of the Stephenson County Marketing company, and the construction of a modern creamery and receiving plant at Freeport, with receiving stations at Damascus, German Valley, Lena and Dakota. The company was incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000, and about 500 members. Since that time the membership has doubled and the capital stock has been increased to $75,000. One shipment of butter packed in this was sent to Cuba. A wholesale plant has been started at Rockford. All the property, including the creamery and a large warehouse for storing salt, twine and other supplies sold to farmers, is owned by the farmer stockholders.

For the fourth month Rose Christine Mercedes, F. T. Fowler's Holstein cow leads all the cows in the Lake County Cow Testing association with 2502 lbs. of milk for the month and 87.5 lbs. butter. His herd also leads the association for the 3rd month. The ration of the leading cow is oats, bran, cornmeal, barley, oilmeal, soy bean meal, and cotton seed meal. 18 lbs per day with 25 lbs stlage and 12 lbs. alfalfa hay.

IMPORTANT SPRAYS

There is still time to put on the dormant spray for scale if this has not been done. Use 6½ gallons liquid lime sulphur to 50 gallons of water or not less than 15 lbs of dry lime sulphur to 50 gallons of water. About 2 gallons of spray are necessary per tree for 10 year old trees and up to 4 or 5 gallons for 20 year old trees.

The next important spray is when the blossom buds show pink. This time use only 1½ gallons of liquid lime sulphur to 50 gallons of water or 4 lbs of dry lime sulphur to 50 gallons of water. To this must be added 1 pound of powdered lead arsenate or 2 lbs of paste arsenate of lead.

Then the calyx spray follows which is put on when about three fourths of the petals have fallen off, using same strength as for the "pink spray." As a considerable quantity of fruit has already been killed in the southern fruit district and as the outlook for lessened production this year as a result of the very heavy production last year, it is likely going to pay very well to spray all our fruit this year. Practically all of the Illinois peach crop has been destroyed as well as the Georgia and Arkansas crop. This will tend to make other fruit more valuable.

The bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture recently received in one day enrollment blanks from 136 Vermont farmers who have joined the "better sire-better stock" crusade. Among them was the enrollment of H. H. Reese, superintendent of the United States Morgan horse farm near Middlebury, Vt., who enrolled 228 head of horse, cattle, sheep and chickens. All of this stock is bred exclusively to pure-bred sires, this being a requirement for enrollment.

ORGANIZED FORCES FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS OF ANIMALS

Tuberculosis of live stock is being attacked on all sides. In addition to the large force of Federal, state and county veterinarians engaged in the nation-wide campaign for eradicating this disease, there are thousands of accredited veterinarians assisting with the work. Records of the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture, show that on March 1, 1923, there were 5,120 accredited veterinarians in the United States. As accredited herds are established the various states turn them over to the accredited veterinarians who test them annually at the expense of the owner. This permits county, state and Federal veterinarians to devote all their time to herds that have not been accredited.

The Federal government keeps in close touch with the accredited veterinarians and furnishes them every few months with information regarding the disease and any unusual conditions that may be encountered in the herds under supervision.

The tuberculosis-free accredited herd list is increasing very rapidly. The report of the bureau of animal industry just published shows that on March 1, 1923, there were 24,132 fully accredited herds, 260,034 once-tested free herds, and 332,887 herds under supervision.

Plenty of Room for Pure Breds. A census taken by County Agent Watson in Floyd County, Ind., in 1921, showed that the county had 6,177 milch cows, of which but 90 were pure bred and registered. There were 100 dairy bulls in use in the county, of which but 19 were registered. The census showed that but 381 cows were bred to pure-bred bulls during the previous year.

The county agent used these figures in a county better-sire campaign to show the farmers of the county the need of improvement in their live-stock breeding operations. As a result of the campaign 8 pure-bred bulls were bought and 6 scrub bulls were sold to the butcher.

THE JUDGE KNEW HIM
Judge (to red-nosed individual): "So you're here again."
Hogan: "It's my first time, your honor."
Judge: "I'm sure I have seen you before."
Hogan: "Yes, your honor, I used to tend bar across the street."

Grass Lake School

MARY MICHELI, Editor
Time works many changes, but perhaps the growth of the hotel business at Grass Lake the past 35 or 40 years has been one of the most noticeable. Before the Soo Line was built through Antioch hunters or people wishing to reach here came to Wadsworth then by stage the remainder of the way. Roads at times were almost impassable during spring and fall, but the ones who endured the hardship of travel were rewarded with good duck hunting.

One of the first hotels was opened by Mr. Carl Herman, known as The Hunter's Home. This was located where Mr. Mecklenburg now lives. Charles Herman then built a hotel on Bluff Lake.

Others were The Ramaker House on the north shore of Fox Lake, Robert Selter, Grass Lake; Mr. Paddock on Bluff Lake, now run by Mr. Johnson. A steamer operated between Raymaker's and other points on Fox Lake and McHenry. Some of the guests found this an interesting way of reaching their destination.

Today autos meet all trains at Antioch and guests are taken to all the nearby resorts. These resorts have grown in number and the hotels are up-to-date, able to accommodate many hundreds of people.

The lake shore is built up with hotels and summer homes, taking nearly all the available land along the lake. Some people are beginning to build back with privilege to the lake. It now looks like a populous town. What will it be in another 25 or thirty years?

At 25 principal points outside of Washington the United States department of agriculture is conducting experimental live stock work. Problems in feeding and breeding of live stock, in the prevention and control of insects, parasites and predatory animals harmful to live stock, and other subjects related to the welfare of the live stock of the United States are studied. The stations have been so located that it is possible to study problems confronting live stock men under conditions similar to the actual conditions on the farm or range. This makes the results of greatest value, because the live stock grower can apply them without great modification.

ONE IN SEVEN HOGS KILLED IN 1922 SHOW TUBERCULOSIS

Federal meat inspection records for the year 1922 show that an average of one hog out of every seven slaughtered in establishments under Federal inspection during the year showed lesions of tuberculosis. Altogether 39,416,439 hogs were slaughtered under the act. Of them showed lesions of the disease.

Hogs are infected principally by following diseased cattle in the feed lot and by drinking milk from tuberculosis cattle. Because of the short-feeding period of hogs, the tuberculosis lesions are usually localized; the head and glands of the neck are most commonly affected. However, it is estimated that in 1922 more than $2,000,000 worth of pork was condemned as unfit for human food on account of tuberculosis. This is but a part of the total loss sustained by the nation on account of tuberculosis in hogs. Animals affected with the disease can not make the best gains, and the danger to human health is a factor always to be considered.

The vigorous campaign being conducted for the eradication of this dread disease has resulted up to March 1, 1923, in 24,132 accredited herds in the United States, in which more than a half million cattle have been pronounced free from tuberculosis. Every herd that is freed reduces the menace to the hog industry.

In 1918 only 329 of the 1,257 bulls in service in Winnebago County, Wis., were pure bred, according to reports to the United States department of agriculture. After two years of better sires work the number of pure-bred sires had increased to 645. At the end of the third year the assessor's records showed 777 pure-bred bulls in the county. This record shows that at the beginning of 1922 over half of the bulls in service in the county were pure bred.

Experimental work by the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture, shows that good egg yields and economical results can be secured with a wheatless ration for chickens.
